Enrollment tips

- Explore coursework in your major and other departments to be prepared to choose a broad range of courses.
- Review course descriptions in the Academic guide to ensure you are prepared for the courses in which you are considering enrollment.
- Lower-division courses are numbered 1-99, upper-division courses are 100-199, and graduate courses are 200 and above.
- You are eligible to enroll in undergraduate classes for which you have the prerequisites and if space is available in the class.
- Some of your proposed courses may not be offered or may already be full when you try to enroll.
- If a course is full, add your name to the course waitlist and enroll in an alternative course in case you do not get into the waitlisted course.
- Upper-division courses in your major can be intense and require additional study time for international students. UC students usually take 2 to 3 courses in their major and complete the remainder of their enrollment with courses in other areas of interest.
